Pennies for Patients

Fundraising for Pennies for Patients ended on Friday, January 29th. As a school, we raised $199.21 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society!

Jessica's advising won the competition between the advising groups, raising $104.30! They will receive a pizza party paid for by the Student Government as their reward for their efforts.

In the composition class, the students write several of those types including: journal entries, essays, personal narratives, character analyses, persuasive essays, and research papers. For each of those writings, the students work through the steps of the writing process: planning, rough draft, editing, and final draft. This helps the students understand that writing is a process that they have to plan out and work through. It is extremely important that the students keep up with the work in this class! If they fall behind, they end up trying to write multiple papers at the same time.

They have already finished the personal narrative and are working on a character analysis over one of the characters in the movie The Breakfast Club. The students' final drafts of the character analysis are due on Friday, February 5th for blue day classes and Monday, February
